Colombia international Radamel Falcao has revealed that Arsenal are keen on bringing him to the Premier League. The striker is currently on the books of Argentine outfit River Plate, with a fee of £8million believed to be enough for his signature.

The 22-year-old told The Sun: "I know there is interest from Arsenal and that excites me.

"If there is an agreement between the clubs I'm ready to go. It would mean a huge leap forward in my career.

"I can guarantee my financial future. The Premier League is sensational."

The former Millonarios trainee has made seven appearances for the Colombian national side, scoring two goals in the process.

I have always hope that someone that plays in argentina's league will join us.

Argentina's league have great skillful players and I believe this guy could replace Ade-bye-or immediately.

Yes I read that, but I think we should buy new striker, and we also need to buy one defender like real gunner is saying. We should buy Micah Richards! He said that he is Arsenal fan and maybe we should take this as advantage.
